

Which Voice Will You Listen To? — Graham Weaver

Stanford GSB Class of 2024 · 2024 · 24 min

To live at full power, you must silence your voice of fear and follow your inner truth—the voice that speaks through energy, intuition, and what excites you most.

The Two Voices

- Voice of fear (survival instinct): loud, in your head, injects doubt and anxiety, keeps you safe but small
- Voice of truth (soul/intuition): quieter, felt in your body (heart, gut, chest), contains your dreams and real path
- The voice of fear leads to a life too small; your power lies in the second voice
- Most people let fear drown out their inner wisdom and never reach full potential

Everything you want is on the other side of the thing you fear right now.

Promise 2: Follow Your Energy (Not Passion)

- ‘Follow your passion’ is harmful—implies one passion, you should know it at 28, do it for 40 years
- Instead follow your energy: whatever excites you right now, makes you jump out of bed
- Nine Lives exercise: imagine nine parallel lives starting today, all things you’re super excited about
- Energy is how your soul talks to you—it’s abundant like love, not exhaustible like willpower
- Ask: ‘What would I do if I knew I wouldn’t fail?’ That’s your richest dream

Energy is the language of your soul.

The Meaning of Life

- The meaning of life is to find your meaning of life—to live at full power
- That power is already inside you, accessed through your second voice
- Your inner voice shows you where to direct your power for maximum impact
- Life isn’t millions of decisions—it’s one decision: which voice will you listen to?

Promise 1: Take the Nail Out of Your Head

- Your ‘nail’ is what keeps you stuck: bad habits, unresolved past, limiting rules/assumptions, or fear
- Two reasons we don’t remove it: (1) haven’t admitted we have one, (2) life gets worse first before better
- Speak your truth out loud—half the battle is admitting the problem exists
- Everything you want is on the other side of ‘worse first’—change is always uncomfortable initially

We build helmets around our nails instead of pulling them out.

Promise 3: Go All In Now

- Most people stay hedged—one foot in, one foot out, waiting for the ‘right time’
- ‘Not now’ is fear in disguise and will turn into ‘never’—the two most dangerous words
- You + energy + all in + as long as it takes = enough. No other ingredients needed
- Going all in shifts your identity, eliminates internal conflict, and multiplies your energy
- Burnout comes from friction and misalignment, not from doing something a long time

You excited about something going all in as long as it takes is not just enough—it’s the most powerful force there is.
